Courtney Younglove, MD
FOMA, FACOG, DABOM, MSCP

Standard intro (45–60 seconds)

Please welcome Dr. Courtney Younglove (pronounced YUNG-luv).

For twenty-five years, Dr. Younglove has cared for women as an OB/GYN and an obesity medicine physician, and she's board-certified in both. She's a Fellow of the Obesity Medicine Association, an elected member of its Board of Trustees, and a Menopause Society Certified Practitioner.

She founded Heartland Weight Loss in 2018 and spent eight years building an independent obesity medicine practice in Overland Park, Kansas. She now sees patients at AdventHealth Kansas City and serves as Program Director for Women's Outpatient Services.

She writes and speaks about what women are taught to believe about their bodies, and what it costs them. Today she'll talk about [insert description of topic].

Please join me in welcoming Dr. Courtney Younglove.

Short backup (25–30 seconds)

Please welcome Dr. Courtney Younglove, pronounced YUNG-luv. She's an OB/GYN and obesity medicine physician, board-certified in both, a Fellow of the Obesity Medicine Association, and an elected member of its Board of Trustees. She writes and speaks about what women are taught to believe about their bodies, and what it costs them. Please join me in welcoming Dr. Courtney Younglove.